Lori Pedretti

Lori Pedretti, a registered nurse in Westby, was concerned about what was happening with her community in the past year, and realized a deep disconnect was happening between the business community, the school district, and the general public. That divide led Pedretti to organize a series of community meetings to help attendees recognize the impact everyone has on the success (or failure) of the community where they live. As they prepared to send their 5 year old to school, Lori had deep concerns and wanted to develop stronger relationships within the community. A successful series of meetings followed with community involvement and key result areas identified.

The Five Shovelmen are five volunteer community members who decided that their community needed some enhancements. They have built five bridges connecting their downtown to the bike trail—including several covered bridges. In addition, members of the group and other volunteers have developed and built a series of mini shops that are used by the Farmers Market and for special festivals and events, including a traditional holiday destination for their Kristeindlmarkt Holiday Season Village.
